

MY FUNERAL PLAN

My wishes and information for the future.

Where Do I Begin?

Planning ahead can make things a little easier for your family when the time comes. This guide has been put together to help you gather important information and record your wishes for how you would like your life to be remembered and celebrated.

There is no need to make every decision now, and your wishes do not need to be set in stone. Your family may also want to honour your life in ways that are meaningful to them and bring them comfort.

By recording the things that matter to you, you can help take some of the uncertainty out of the decisions your family may one day need to make, while still leaving them the freedom to create a farewell that feels right.

What is included in My Funeral Plan?

This guide will help you record:

- My Personal Information
The information that will be needed to register your death.
- My Funeral Wishes
The type of funeral or farewell you would like, including burial or cremation and any particular wishes you may have.
- My Service
Where you would like the service to be held, who you would like involved, and your choices for music, readings, poems and other personal elements.
- My Story
The people, places, experiences and memories that have been important in your life, and anything you would like your family to know or include when telling your story.
- My Notes
A place for anything else you would like to record.

*You don't need to have an answer for everything.
